

Demand for high-processing infrastructure, accelerated by Generative AI and the decentralization of computing known as Edge, positions Mexico as a critical regional hub.

This facility is part of a planned national network of AI-Ready data centers from Edgenet, set to total some 30 facilities across the country, including Baja California and Quintana Roo.

In summary, the edge data-center market is set to thrive in Mexico, driven by urbanization, government support, and technological advancements. The interplay of these factors suggests a ...

Mexico is quickly emerging as one of Latin America's leading destinations for data center investment. As cloud computing, artificial intelligence (AI), and Industry 4.0 continue to expand, the ...

Mexico joins the more than 60 Microsoft Cloud regions, distributed all over the world - and will grow to become the first Microsoft datacenter region in Spanish-speaking Latin America. This hyperscale ...

By data center type, colocation services held 83.10% of Mexico data center market share in 2025, while enterprise and edge deployments are projected to grow at 20.05% CAGR to 2031.

In summary, the edge data-center market is set to thrive in Mexico, driven by urbanization, government support, and technological advancements. ...

In 2025, Edgenet Data Technologies announced an ambitious plan to roll out 30 edge data centers, targeting regions like Baja California and Quintana Roo by repurposing former Telefónica ...

This data center market overview explains the current landscape, growth drivers, regional hubs, talent demand, and recruitment opportunities in Mexico's booming digital infrastructure sector.

Mexico's telecom operators are actively rolling out 5G networks across major cities, and edge data centers are becoming essential to support this transformation. This, in turn, is propelling the Mexico ...

In Mexico, new power generation projects and regulatory clarity should ease bottlenecks, while in Brazil, edge data centers and renewable-linked infrastructure projects are likely to accelerate.

Web: <https://tlaletsoglobal.co.za>